“Expand Your Leadership Schools”

Dear Friend,

I am ambitious to help people around me become more influential in their homes, careers, communities and church. I am especially ambitious to help leaders lead with better skills and more integrity. Because of these ambitions, for the last three years I have committed time and energy to Leadership School. This Saturday, March 5, from 9 a.m. until noon, I will be teaching Steven Sample’s revolutionary work, The Contrarian’s Guide to Leadership.

In this book, Sample explains fifteen leadership concepts. One is, “Don’t delude yourself into thinking that people are intrinsically better or worse than they really are; instead work to bring out the best in your followers and yourself while minimizing the worst.” This idea, if put into practice, would radically change how 75% of the leaders around you relate to each other, the people they lead and the people with whom they do business.

Even if you are unable to read the book, join me this Saturday and think through these ideas so that your leadership skills expand and improve.

Somebody is going to lead for good or for bad – I encourage you to be a leader who is a force for good in our generation!

God Bless,

Doc
